More help needed in Owsley search

Owsley County Emergency Management is asking for more people to help in the search for a missing Owsley County man.

Emergency Management Director James Pendergrass said Tuesday afternoon that over 20 organizations, including the Lee County Rescue Squad, and individuals have been looking in the Buffalo area for 47-year-old Conley Baker, Jr., who walked into the woods last Thursday around 12:30 p. m.

Pendergrass said people from as far away as Pendelton County have helped in the search. However, he said that the terrain is steep, rugged and thick with vegetation.

Baker was last seen wearing green, olive drab Army fatigues, with Army boots and a green shirt around his neck. He is 5'9", and weighs approximately 125 pounds.

Anyone with any information about Baker's whereabouts or wanting to join in the search is asked to call Owsley Emergency Management at (606) 568-0237.

Lykins trial next week

Jury selection is scheduled to begin this coming Monday in the murder case of Madeline Lykins.

The 56-year-old is charged with the October 18, 2013 shooting death of her husband, Rexall B. Lykins, in their Primrose Lane home.

She is also charged with tampering with physical evidence by allegedly disposing of her purse and wallet in the cistern at the home.

New laws take effect June 24

A long view

The four, pre-fab concrete deck beams for the KY 52 East bridge arrived in Beattyville Friday morning. A member of the escort crew said the caravan "made no friends" from Slade to the Lee County line. He said the beams came from Lexington. The contractor has until July 31 to complete the bridge at St. Helens.

Temporary fix for 52

A temporary access road is allowing traffic to again flow along KY 52 East at St. Helens.

Kentucky Transportation Cabinet District 10 Chief Engineer Corbett Caudill said in a press release last Friday (June 12), "The contractor had to build an access road at the site to deliver and place the beams for the bridge. We were able to work with them to allow it to remain as a diversion for traffic while the project is continuing, so we could reopen the road as a convenience to the public."

Caudill was referring to the construction of a bridge being constructed over Double Cabin Creek.

An old box culvert at the site failed because of high water earlier this year. The state allotted emergency funds for the project. Approximately 2,200 vehicles use the route, which connects Beattyville and Jackson, on a daily basis.

Temporary signals are installed at the site allowing one-lane traffic.

The state established a detour route using KY 11 and KY 30 through Owsley County, but many drivers have been using Primrose Lane, which is narrow and crooked.

The bridge must be completed by July 31.

Last of the big deliveries

Hilltop Pizza recently filled all of these pizza boxes to fill orders at Lee Adjustment Center. Owner Linda Evanoff Campbell posted the picture of facebook along with the following note, "I want to personally thank all the employees and inmates at Lee Adjustment Center. We at Hilltop Pizza have taken your orders for almost a decade. You all truly feel like part of our Hilltop family. To the inmates I only know you by your names but I thank you for choosing us as your favorite place to order. These big orders that you all place it's not all about money, it becomes personal when you have written the same names on a pizza box for over 9 years I feel like I know you. With the prison closing it will be devastating to our small town. I don't know anything about politics but I do know something needs to be done that will keep our businesses from closing and our people losing their jobs."

County accepts some bids

The Lee County Fiscal Court last Thursday (June 11) accepted three bids for supplies, but held off on others until they can be clarified.

Hinkle Contracting was the only bidder for both rock and gravel and asphalt.

The price of rock and gravel, picked up at the quarry, is: $6.75 for waste, $9.45 for R57, $8.75 for #610s, $9.85 for #DGA (dry), $10.45 for #2/ @4/ #57, $11.25 for #8s/ #9s, $12 for C.L. II, and $12.50 for C.L. III.

Asphalt, installed on county roads is $83.25 per ton for asphalt base or binder, $84.25 per ton for asphalt surface and $2.50 for asphalt tack-oil. If picked up at the plant the prices are $68 per ton for asphalt base, $68 per ton for asphalt binder and $69 per ton for asphalt surface.

Hudson Materials submitted the only bid for road oil.

The prices are $2.30 per gallon for RS-2, $2.45 for AE - 200, $3.45 for Enviro and .30 cents per gallon mixing fee for Pug Mill.

County Judge/Executive Steve Mays said on Tuesday that the court would probably have a called meeting next week to discuss the other bids. At Thursday's meeting, members of the court agreed that representatives from the various firms should appear to better explain the bids.

Workman Oil had submitted a gasoline bid for 87 and 89 octane.. It was cost plus freight and applicable taxes plus 7.5 center per gallon markup.

The company also submitted a bid for ultra low sulfur diesel. That bid was cost plus freight and applicable taxes plus 7.5 cents per gallon markup.

Kentucky Petroleum only submitted a bid for diesel. That bid is cost plus applicable taxes, common carrier freight and a .0490 center per gallon markup. However, a notation on the bid after the markup says, "I think they put the decimal in wrong place."

The bids for culverts and double wall plastic pipe and galvanized pipe were received and opened Thursday. However, they were not awarded until County Road Foreman Ferrell Wise can review them.

Bids came from Interstate Fence Company, Lee County Building Supply, Gateway Pipe, Kentucky Underground, and Consolidated Pipe and Supply Company.

The prices of the bidders are given in different ways, which caused some confusion for members of the court.

Also during Thursday's regular monthly meeting, County Finance Officer Pearl Spencer told the court that auditors want the county to strengthen is purchase order system. Therefore, she said that since May 1 purchase orders have been required from the judge/executive's office. Any purchase made without such a purchase order cannot be charged to the fiscal court.

In other matters, Administrate Assistant Pamela Barrett's wage was increased from $12.44 an hour to $13.25.

Second, and final reading was given to the Fiscal Year 2015-2016 budget.

The second, and final reading was

Journalistic malpractice committed in Kentucky
Republican governor’s race

Even before I left the journalism profession, I’d become critical of the way the news is covered. From the stories that are chosen vs. those that are ignored, to the way certain stories are presented, I saw journalism, especially the kind practiced by daily newspapers, swirling around the drain a long time ago.

But now that I’m on the other side of things, and have had the misfortune to be misquoted or have a quote taken out of context as a source for a news story (thankfully, very rarely,) I see it even more clearly.

As someone who remains a staunch defender of the First Amendment and appreciates the role the press is supposed to play, this pains me. But day after day, I see journalistic malpractice being committed to the extent that it’s becoming obvious that most of the traditional mainstream media’s wounds are self-inflicted.

Nowhere was this more evident than in the just-concluded Kentucky Republican gubernatorial primary. It’s hard to picture a bigger failure of journalists to do their jobs than in the way the governor’s race was covered.

A key factor in this year’s four-way primary, won by Louisville resident Matt Bevin by a razor-thin margin, was the role that blogger Michael Adams played in the race. Adams, you’ll recall, is the person who began making allegations that Jamie Comer assaulted a college girlfriend. His charges circulated around the Internet for months, but finally floated to the surface when the Lexington Herald-Leader reported that Adams had contacted the campaigns of two of Comer’s Republican rivals, Hal Heiner and Will T. Scott, to peddle his allegations. (Some nontraditional media outlets reported that Adams also made contact with the campaign of Attorney General Jack Conway, who was the presumptive Democratic gubernatorial nominee.)

When Adams’ assertions hit the mainstream, the race blew wide open. Adams had been trying to convince Comer’s ex-girlfriend to give him information, but she refused. When the Herald-Leader story hit print, she felt compelled to contact The Courier-Journal to confirm the allegations. The rest is well-known. Comer blamed Heiner for spreading the story, accused his ex-girlfriend of making the story up for money, and the fallout is widely believed to have damaged both of them and allowed Bevin to emerge victorious by a scant 83 votes.

The big player in the race was clearly Adams, but why didn’t the media investigate him? Why did they never dig into his motivation for opposing Comer so ardently? How could they allow him to affect the race the way he did without questioning why? The closest anyone came was a story by CNHI’s political reporter Ronnie Ellis, but his story consisted mainly of Auditor Adam Edelen complaining about Adams’ prior involvement in a legislative race in Clark County. Giving Edelen, a Democrat, space to go on a partisan rant against how Adams was involved in opposition research against another Democrat a few years ago is hardly the same as shining some light on his motivation for getting involved in the governor’s race this year.

By not investigating Adams’ reasons for attacking Comer so viciously, but letting Adams’ revelations dominate the news as the campaign entered its final stretch, the media failed. And the press failed again by latching on to Adams’ more salacious allegations, yet not exploring his more substantive charges.

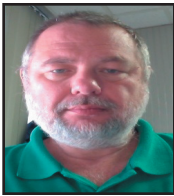

Comer ran primarily on his record the past four years as commissioner of agriculture. Adams made several claims that Comer has mismanaged the state’s pilot industrial hemp project, yet no one ever looked into those charges. One would think that from a policy standpoint, that would be more important than a “he said, she said” matter from two decades ago. But I can’t recall having seen any media outlet doing a story about the hemp issue.

There were other media mistakes made as well. One of Comer’s top assistants in the Department of Agriculture left her official job and went to work for his campaign, then abruptly quit. Several prominent Comer supporters and donors, including family members of this former staffer, switched their support from Comer to Heiner. Some perfunctory reporting was done on their change of favored candidate, but no one looked into the bigger picture, including why a trusted aide left Comer’s side. Speculation ran rampant in cyberspace, but nothing was ever put on the record.

The domestic abuse allegations were low-hanging fruit. I’d been aware of them for months, long before they hit the mainstream, but didn’t consider them credible until the ex-girlfriend confirmed them. It would have taken a little more investigating to check out the charges of mismanagement of the hemp program, but that wasn’t as eye-catching or glamorous as allegations of physical abuse. And it would have required even more digging to get the scoop on the source of the charges himself.

We may never know what prompted Adams to turn into an anti-Comer zealot. Had the press done its job, we would have found out. What if Adams decides to get involved in another race this fall? Will the press then try to learn what makes him tick, but only after he had an unscrutinized impact on the GOP gubernatorial primary?

Anything worth doing, is worth doing right – NOT HARDER

By Dayna Marie Ward

You know what, everything changes, so since we know that we should embrace that. But the sad thing is, we don’t embrace change – we stubbornly refuse to accept change. For the most part, people misjudge how considerably they will transform in the impending years to come. Me, you, the guy down the road, your grandma, your daddy, your pastor, everyone just doesn’t identify how much their outwardly crucial characters will change and develop.

Kentucky is changing. Taking the hard earned advice from other states, medical professionals, advocates, addicts themselves, paraprofessionals, who have learned the hard way. Hindsight, is not always pretty. Sometimes I kinda hate it. In 2011 an estimated 49,081 people in the United States were diagnosed with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. About 1 in 6 people with HIV in the United States do not know that they are infected. In 2011, an estimated 342 adults and adolescents were diagnosed with HIV in Kentucky.

Kentucky ranked 27 among the 50 states in the number of HIV diagnoses in 2011. Clearly we are not a healthy state, what’s worse is that we stay mired in ignorance and bad practice.

March 26, Kentucky lawmakers upheld wide-ranging legislation to fight THE state’s heroin epidemic. But also the merging Hepatitis C Epidemic that’s found its way to the limelight in Kentucky. According to the CDC, Kentucky now ranks as the state with the most cases of HCV in the country. Thanks to Heroin and the fact that Kentucky is still partially invested in this approach of “abstinence only, incarceration all the way” for addicts. But that approach is changing.

According to an article in The United States Conference of Mayors (USCM) Best Practices Center; in the spring of 1989 Seattle started its needle exchange program. The program was initiated by local activists who immediately presented their case for a government-sponsored needle exchange program to the Health Department, the Mayor, the Chief of Police, and the King County Executive. That was more than 12 years ago and they are still going strong today.

Today, an addict who avoids an overdose will no longer be indicted with breaking the law, after being given the lifesaving drug Naloxone. As an alternative, they will be allied with contacts to social services agencies and community mental well-being agencies. Instead of immediate incarceration, a different kind of help will be given. And in my opinion this is better. What the heck were we doing creating some sort of jail to prison penal colony?

I can understand that there’s a lot of people with misconceptions still yet. I would be too if I hadn’t done any research on the subject and true, there’s a risk with anything. But according to the National Library of Medicine, in the United States, 52 such programs are operating legally in 17 states as of December 2008. Yes that’s a lot! What makes this so positive is that in lieu of this, is that these programs operate along with needle exchange programs in each community – this helps drive down communicable, blood borne diseases. So people who might die of an overdose, and/or also of a blood borne disease also perchance may not now die of either one.

Why wouldn’t any community want to be on the side of those odds?

According to an article addressing blood borne diseases among jail and prison populations (of which Beattyville is party to) the New England Journal of Medicine, Robert E. Fullilove of Columbia University’s Mailman School of Public Health, said “The issue has never been, Do we understand what has to happen to reduce the risks? . . . It’s always been, Do we have the political will necessary to put what we know is effective into operation?”

AMD TREATMENT OPTIONS

Age-related macular degeneration (AMD), a leading cause of vision loss in people aged 55 years and older, causes damage to the central portion of the retina (macula) that is responsible for sharp, central vision. While the “wet” form of AMD is less common (10%-15% of cases) than the “dry,” it accounts for 90% of all cases of severe vision loss from the disease. The wet form of the disease is characterized by abnormal blood vessels under the retina that tend to break and bleed, causing the retina to lift. Fortunately, there is treatment that inhibits the growth of these blood vessels. It involves injecting bevacizumab (Avastatin) or ranibizumab (Lucentis) directly into the vitreous, the gel-like filling inside the eye.

Regular eye examinations by your ophthalmologist are the best way to detect eye diseases. At KENTUCKY EYE INSTITUTE, we believe that treatment requires a “team” made up of both you and your doctor. Annual testing is the only sure path to early detection. Please call 606-666-9393 to schedule an appointment. We’re located at 540 Jett Drive. We specialize in “EYE CARE FOR ALL AGES.”

P.S. Prior to the use of bevacizumab (Avastatin) and ranibizumab (Lucentis), “wet” AMD was treated with lasers that stopped the bleeding.

A different view

By Betty Crabtree

I’m studying the Book of Romans at the present, and as I’ve mentioned before I enjoy comparing translations, so in reading from the Wuest translation, which is a literal translation from the Greek, I read from the Sixth Chapter.

In Verse 16 it says this, “I am using an illustration drawn from human affairs because of the frailties of your humanity. For just as you placed your members (whole self) as slaves at the disposal of uncleanness and lawlessness, thus now place your members as slaves at the disposal of righteousness resulting in holiness. For, when you were slaves of the sinful nature you were those who were free with respect to righteousness.”

In the Book of Proverbs NKJ the First Chapter, Verses 20 – 33 are some sobering verses concerning The Call of Wisdom especially Verse 29, “Because they hated knowledge and did not CHOOSE (emphasis is mine) the fear of the Lord...Verse 31 Therefore they shall eat the fruit of their own way...so we all have and make choices and there are consequences to every choice, good or bad.

(This is an aside. Did you know that one definition of the word stupid is “lacking common sense and understanding”?)

Psalm 65:4a Amp., Blessed (happy, fortunate, to be envied) is the man whom you choose and cause (choice?) to come near...

To sum up, Romans 10:9 Amp., “if you acknowledge and confess with your lips that Jesus is Lord and in your heart believe (adhere to, trust in, and rely on the truth) that God raised Him from the dead, you will be saved.” The underlining is mine.

Choosing; believing is life-changing!

GREATNESS

By Billy Davis

Greatness is a desirable thing to possess, but those who seek it for their own self will fail to really find true greatness.

The Bible states emphatically: “But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant.”

We can clearly see this is true as we look back on history. Also, righteousness plays a great role in greatness. “When righteous men do rejoice, their is great glory; but when the wicked rise, a man is hidden.” (Proverbs 28:12)

Love also has its significant part in greatness: From that well known Chapter 13, Verse 13: “And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, but the greatest of these is love.”

“A great man may be the personification and type of the epoch for which God destines him, but he is never its creator.” (D’Aubigne)

God can lift up and God can bring down. Let’s not forget it.

be dealing with new state laws that take effect June 24.

Of the 117 laws passed by the Kentucky General Assembly during the 2015 session, 98 will take effect next Wednesday. The others either had emergency provisions or are scheduled for a later date.

Senate Bill 133 will expand the use of ignition interlocks for people caught driving under the influence of alcohol. The device, which is about the size of a mobile phone, is wired into the ignition system of a vehicle. A person convicted of driving under the influence must blow into the device in order to start their vehicle. If they have a measurable amount of alcohol in their system, the vehicle will not start.

House Bill 152 allows more investment in modern technologies by ending telephone companies’ obligations to provide landline phone services to customers in urban and suburban areas if they provide service through another technology, such as a wireless or Internet-based phone service. Rural customers can keep their landline phones they already have, but newly constructed homes in rural areas won’t be guaranteed landline service.

Senate Bill 82 will place check-off boxes on tax forms to give people getting state income tax refunds the option of donating a portion to support child cancer research, the Special Olympics or rape crises centers.

Also, Senate Bill 33 will allow electronic versions of pull-tab Bingo tickets at charitable Bingo halls.

Senate Bill 102 will allow a death caused by intentional abuse to be considered first-degree manslaughter.

House Bill 315 will require booster seats to be used in motor vehicles in motor vehicles by children who are less than eight years old and are between 40 and 57 inches in height.

House Bill 24 will prevent youth from misusing certain cough medicines to get high – sometimes called “robotripping” – by restricting access to medicines that contain dextromethorphan. The bill will prevent sales of dextromethorphan-based products, such as Robitussin-DM or Nyquil, to minors.

House Bill 234 will require early child care and education programs to follow a state quality-based rating system.

also given to a budget amendment relating to money coming in that was unexpected. Some is from a slip cleanup, some from Solid Waste and some from higher Ambulance Service revenues.

Justin Spencer was hired for seasonal mowing at $8.50 an hour.

Lillie Charles was hired as the Ambulance Service’s office clerk at $9.87 per hour.

Treasurer Jodi Coldiron was re-appointed to a four-year term.

Second, and final reading was given to a state-required ordinance relating to electrical inspection fees.

Approval was given to renewal of lease agreements with the Kentucky River Authority for both Locks 13 and 14 and their dams. This is so operation of boat ramps and green space can continue.

The court approved a refund of $185,000 from the Road Fund to the General Fund.

Mays said that large trucks were coming out of the Baker Bar Subdivision Road onto KY 11 South and getting stuck in the ditch.

Magistrate Dean Noe said, “There’s no way in h... they can make that turn.”

The court agreed to install a no truck sign for trucks coming out of the road.

Phyllis McCord, representing the Lee County Rescue Squad, asked that the court approve a $1 lease on a boat.

County Attorney Tom Holton is to review the terms of the lease before next month’s meeting.

Mays and Emergency Management Director Eugene Barrett told the court that four, small weather-related projects are being repaired.

Treasurer Coldiron reported at as of May 31, the following bank balances existed: General Fund - $496,373; Road Fund - $125,609; Jail Fund - $24,144; LGEA - $5,306; Ambulance Fund - $24,223; and Solid Waste Fund - $89,939.

Rescue squad helping

Members of the Lee County Rescue Squad this week joined in the search at Cumberland Falls for a missing Owensboro woman.

The Owensboro Messenger-Inquirer said that 24-year-old Nina Parker went missing around 5:30 p.m. Saturday, June 13, along Trail 9. That trail is near Eagle Falls, which is below Cumberland Falls on the Cumberland River.

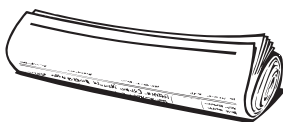

Phyllis McCord of the Lee County Squad said on Tuesday that members of the local group had joined in the search.

45 VS 40

45% of Kentucky job seekers look in the newspaper for job openings.

40% look on the Internet.

So if you're looking for a job...or you've got a job opening to tell people about...doesn't it make sense for both of you to meet where you're most likely to find one another?

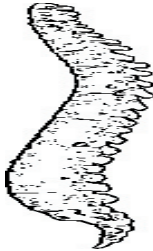

That's right...in the newspaper.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.
